

She brought me coffee.

Said it was "just because."

I asked if she did the same for others.

She said no - just me.

I stared at the cup for a long time.

Not because I was touched.

Because I wanted to know if she thought this made her special.

It didn't.

But I let her think it did.

That's the only kindness I can offer anymore.

- O