

She told me her favorite movie today.

It took her a while to say it, like it was some deep truth.

I expected something complex. I don't know why.

It was a romantic comedy with a dog in it.

She said she watches it every year. Cries every time.

I smiled. Not because it moved me.

Because I realized I could write her entire personality in two lines of dialogue.

- O